7. Club History

The Chairman read a letter from Norman Turvey regarding the Club History.

The letter pointed out that he had completed the writing of the History as far back as the beginning of the year, and after submitting the MSS. to the President & Oppenheimer and incorporating their corrections and suggestions had had no further news of the progress of the printing. He went on to say that he had learned indirectly that H. W. Parker ^{had} had the MSS for reading at the request of the President, which news had surprised him considerably. He felt therefore that ~~it~~ ^{there} was no point in delaying any longer the request for official information of the Committee's intentions to be conveyed to him.

The Chairman then read the correspondence that had passed between himself & Turvey and Stephenson and intimated that the MSS as written was not suitable for publication. The matter required considerable discussion before arriving at a decision and as there was not sufficient time left to do this the Chairman suggested that the meeting be adjourned. This was agreed and after discussion the date for the adjournment was fixed for September 21st.

September 22nd

At the adjourned meeting the discussion on the Club History was resumed.

The President reported that he had gone through the whole of the typescript of the History and submitted suggestions for alterations to N. E. Turvey after L. Oppenheimer had read the typescript and approved the suggestions, a number of which had been accepted by Turvey. Both he - the President - and L. Oppenheimer had come to the conclusion that the publication of the History as presented by N. E. Turvey would not be in the best interest of the Club, and that even if all the suggestions made had been accepted that judgment would be altered - indeed, they were compelled to the conclusion that the only possible course to pursue would be complete re-writing. However, the President felt that before communicating this conclusion to the Committee, it would be desirable to have the view of two more members: he had therefore arranged with H. W. Barker and George Stephenson that they should read the typescript and state their opinion thereon. H. W. Barker had concurred stated that he concurred in the opinion formed by the President and L. Oppenheimer - George Stephenson had stated that he had read only a portion of the typescript and preferred not to express an opinion. A long discussion followed during which the President gave some of the reasons on which the opinion had been formed - the work had obviously been hurried, it included much matter at length which might well have been left out or mentioned only shortly, that many things characteristic of the Club life had not been dealt with at all - generally that the best use had not been made of the material available, and that, taking it all in all, the work did not give a true picture of the Club's life, and was dull, and not such as to keep the ~~eye~~ interest of the reader. He felt that the Committee should ^{express} an opinion for the guidance of the members generally and that the matter should be brought up at the coming Annual General Meeting. He therefore proposed:-

"That the Committee having heard the report of three senior members on the History of the Club written by N. E. Turvey had very regretfully come to the conclusion that it is not in the best interest of the Club to publish it and advises the members accordingly."

This resolution was passed unanimously.

There followed a discussion on a scheme for the writing of the History of the Club, submitted by F. C. Marriott under which the work would be divided among a number of members, each to take a phase or phases of the Club's activities, the whole to be under the editorship of one member. The scheme met with the approval of the ~~approval~~ Committee, but no formal steps were taken with regard to it, pending the decision of the Annual General Meeting on the Committee's submission with regard to the history written by N. E. Turvey.

Annual General Meeting.

The Annual General Meeting was discussed and there was little to add. The agenda was submitted for approval. Officers and Committee members expressed their willingness to stand for re-election if called upon to do so.

Claims for Club Runs.

Various claims for club runs ~~were~~ for attendance at races on various dates were passed.

There being no other business this concluded the meeting.

and the Chairman produced a draft letter to be as follows:-

"A history of the Club, written by H. E.

of the Club that it should be published.
